Young Latino Artists 20: Within Reach

Experience culture like never before

The Young Latino Artists (YLA) exhibition has historically provided Latina/o artists under the age of thirty-five with professional-level museum experience and exposure. Now in its twentieth year, YLA 20: Within Reach is guest curated by visual artist Ricky Yanas. Mestizaje, as Chicana activist and writer Gloria E. Anzaldúa defined the term, is a border consciousness that comes from “all different cultures of Latin America, people of color and also Europeans.” Unlike the myth of the American “melting pot”, Mestizaje embraces contradiction and plurality, emphasizing the act of cultural mixing and transition as key to its understanding.

YLA 20: Within Reach embodies this philosophy by interweaving a multitude of artistic practices and ideas, finding points of intersection and divergence in a garden of objects, images, and flora. This exhibition brings together stand-alone and site-specific works by nine Chicana/o, Tejana/o, Mexicana/o, and Puertorriqueña/o artists focusing on acts of negation/destruction and reinterpretation/revitalization, highlighting the generative space between these conflicting ideas. Through processes of collage, archiving, and personal and environmental exploration, these artists are beginning to break down the alienating messages produced by dominant corporate culture, finding new symbols and mythologies in their own personal histories and the physical space around them. The title of the exhibition, Within Reach, refers not only to the proximity of these artists to their materials and subjects, but also Reach, refers not only to the proximity of these artists to their materials and subjects, but also to a future free of corrosive mainstream influences, driven by trust in one’s own cultural heritage and experience.

The exhibition was conceived as a garden—literally and metaphorically—where images, objects, and ideas mix and converse. The potted plants contrast against the space of the Museum and the artworks, echoing a possibility of personal and political growth from a place between nature and artifice. We encourage visitors to bring their own potted plants so that they may be incorporated into the exhibition.

The exhibition is currently being showcased at the Mexic-Arte Museum; 419 Congress Avenue, Austin, TX 78701, through August 23, 2015.
