If you could celebrate only one holiday this year, what would it be?

If I only had one holiday to do in 2007, I would pick Christmas. I love Christmas very much. The reason why I like it so much is because my birthday is 5 days before Christmas. I get even more presents because of this. I think Christmas is a time for everyone to come together and celebrate. You get to spend time with your family and see cousins you have not seen in years. Christmas is not just about presents but about joy and love.

In 2007 I only want my birthday. I want my birthday because it is all about me! I get treated the best. I love my birthday because of the presents, piñata and cake. It is grand! All of my relatives and friends are there. I might have a sleepover. My birthday is better than any other holiday (except maybe Christmas).

Valentines Day is a day to love and to care. I celebrate it because it really gives me remembrance of the ones I loved who have passed away. I give my family cards to show them how much I love them. I am crazy about it. My mom, dad, sister and brother love me a lot. I hope they know I love them too!

The holiday I like to celebrate is Christmas. Christmas is about giving not getting. It is about spending time with your family. It is about celebrating it for fun. It is about putting up and looking at all the great decorations. It is about caring and sharing with your family.

If I only had one holiday in 2007 it would be Ramadan. It is my last name and it is a time of peace. It does not matter if you do not get presents. It matters if you fast because God told you too. Do not fast if you are sick, but if you are small you can fast. By the age of 8 or more you can start fasting, like me. I started fasting when I was in 1st grade and now I am in 3rd grade. When you fast, you fast for 30 days. You do not eat until sunset. You eat nice food like rolled meat, rice, chicken and everything else. My religion is Muslim, Islam. If you are like me, fast like me!
